

ALL AROUND US.

WHAT IS GOING ON IN NEIGHBORING TOWNS.

An incendiary fire in Bainbridge—A building and a house in Bainbridge, Alabama, the property of the late John S. Smith, was destroyed by fire on Thursday night at half past ten o'clock, destroying it and three other frame store houses adjoining. Two of the others were owned by the estate of Shepherd Belcher and one by Mrs. B. B. Belcher. Loss, $4,000; no insurance. Daniel's stock, about two hundred in value, totally destroyed, was covered by $500 insurance. Mr. Ben Colbert, occupying one of the houses, a jeweler and sewing machine agent, lost between one hundred and one hundred and fifty dollars in valuable tools and damage to his stock removing it. Messrs. Fordham & Skipper, large grocery merchants, lost at least five hundred dollars in moving their stock to a place of safety. No insurance. Had not a heavy rain fallen about three hours before the fire, dampening these, now burnt up tinder boxes, it would have been impossible for the firemen to have saved the town. The fire was the work of an incendiary beyond a doubt.

A PANIC IN BIRMINGHAM.
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 13.—[Special.]—This morning about 9 o'clock Mr. Poppo, a slacker committed suicide in Jones' restaurant, in Second avenue, by shooting himself in the head with a pistol, and producing instant death. He was a professor of music, and leaves a family to mourn his loss. The cause is not known.

On Saturday last somewhat of a panic was produced in this city by the hoisting of an advertising flag by Messrs. Moore, Moore & Handley. The flag was of yellow bunting with a black border and a star in the center, and as the people were somewhat afraid that small-pox would break out any day, they at once thought that it had made its appearance, and some began to prepare to leave. The health officer made the request that the flag be taken down, which request was promptly complied with. The gentleman who hoisted it did not intend to frighten any one. Should you see any notices that the small-pox is here you will know how it started.

ELBERTON CRIMINAL TRIAL.
ELBERTON, March 13.—[Special.]—Elberton superior court convened this morning, Judge E. H. Pottle presiding. Solicitor General George F. Pierce, Jr., is at his post among his hands full of criminal business. Allen Blackwell, colored, who has been convicted of murder, and had a new trial granted him, comes up for trial again. He is ably defended by General D. M. DuBoise, Hamilton, McWhorter, and Worley & Carlton, but the general impression is that he will be convicted again. The attendance of lawyers at the court will be large, quite a number have already arrived, among them Messrs. W. M. Reese, M. P. Reese, D. M. DuBoise and F. H. Colley, of Washington; T. W. Rucker, of Athens. It is possible that an adjourned term of the court will have to be held to clear the docket.

PAT LONG'S GARDEN.

The Emerald Glories of a Laughing Ten Acres of a Macon Gardener.

"I'm going out to see Pat Long this morning, and if you want to see one of the prettiest sights around Macon, hop up and let's look over his garden."

It was Mr. C. L. O'Gorman who thus extended the invitation, while he sat in his buggy, and with the whip tantalized a presuming fly that was trying to find a resting place on the ear of his horse.

The invitation was instantly accepted, and soon we were driving over Second street, discussing dry goods, weather and other timely topics between surprise exclamations at the great number of improvements and buildings being put up on either hand. About half a mile beyond the water works we pulled up before a plain, substantial house, the residence of Pat Long, known to Macon people for many years as her most successful gardener.

We were soon under the wing of the veteran lumberjack, and moving among the emerald glories of his laughing ten acres.

"Your lettuce looks well, Mr. Long," said Mr. O'Gorman, who acted the part of the gimlet, while the reporter stored away the results of the boring.

"Yes; this is good sale. And it's rather strange about this lettuce. Some time ago it was a hard matter to sell this curled lettuce, but now it sells readily. I have both kinds, the curled and the cabbage head, and I continue to plant them all along the season. I put them in waste places, old rows, and thus keep up a steady supply."

"Here are my cabbages. I only plant two kinds—the Jersey Wakefield and Henderson's early summer. The early York, Drumhead, and such seeds, are long since abandoned. I have 12,000 plants of each, and a good number of the cabbages in market. They are hard heads, firm, and as good as any cabbages."

Now, supposing Mr. Long averaged five cents per head for these cabbages, which gives a good margin for loss on spoiled ones, family use, etc., he would get $50 for this branch of his garden alone. It must be remembered that under the same head he has his melons and kale, which will run up the figures to over a thousand.

In onions he has planted several rows of the best variety. The stores and hotels take all he can make. He plants only one kind, the best, having made his selections by long experience. They grow large and evenly, the soil being as rich as soil can possibly be. Take up a handful of the dirt anywhere and it crumbles to dust in your hand. Between a patch of onions and cabbages he has a small area in lucerne, from which he gathers six crops a year. It was planted five years ago, and will come up again next year. It is regular dessert for cattle.

Mr. Long plants his Irish potatoes in his own way. The old method was in hills, covered with straw, but he has found out that the best way is to put them in rows, without hills or straw. Between the rows he plants corn, and thus the plow works both corn and potatoes. The Rose is the variety used by him.

"How do you manage about bugs?"

"I pay my children by the quart for them, and they keep the kale and other things free of them. Here is a bug now. It is called the Lincoln bug, though its proper name is the Chameleon, but when the war came on the colored people called them Lincoln bugs, and I never hear any other name for them."

These speckled bugs would give Mr. Long much trouble did he not have them picked off.

The chickens will not eat them and he has to burn them.

We noticed a number of English sparrows flitting about over the garden.

"Do these sparrows give you any trouble?"

"Not a bit. I love to see the birds here. They don't hurt anything, yet they are of no service destroying the bugs."

The garden is as smooth as a billiard table and the rows are as straight as an arrow. Each department is carefully laid off and the different shades of green are as distinct as the colors of the rainbow.

The Colorado and other vegetables in great number, and radishes were extensively grown, mustard, kale and anything that grows on the table.

The strawberry bed has only young plants, and gives berries in April. They sell very well. These alone he gets a fine revenue, and he has a breeding house, where thousands of turkeys and other plants are set out the better. They are grown first in the hot beds and thrive wonderfully well. They are then taken and set out, and sometimes frames placed for them.

Instead of glass covers for his hot houses, he uses frames thatched with straw, and besides being cheaper are warmer and afford every protection.

The squashes and cucumbers are planted in an enclosed lot, and when up a hen and chickens are placed inside to keep them company. The chickens keep off any bug and never injure the vines.

Mr. Long is now raising celery. This delicate appetizer has never been successfully raised in the south, but after long experimenting and the building of a cistern which gives him the benefit of irrigation, he will succeed this year.

Occasionally we run up on small garden patches in the corners and spare places, and Mr. Long informed us that those belonged to his children, each one having a patch to himself.

The secret of Mr. Long's success is, after long experience, his personal attention to every detail. He buys only the most prolific and marketable varieties, and plants them himself. He uses barnyard manure, and uses it liberally. He keeps the ground rich, and never saps plow nor hoe. By these means his garden brings him a handsome return. He has a living on the fat of the land. His milk and butter is as rich as his land, and these, with fresh, crisp vegetables, he can snap his fingers at the tolling mechanics in the city.

He is thoroughly in love with his truck, and no doubt the daily sight of the growing green is most pleasing to his eye. He gives the people the best and freshest vegetables from the crimson-jacketed radish to the compact snow-white cabbage, and we wish him all the good and suitable weather the clerk can offer.

SHE DIDN'T KNOW IT

Was Loaded, but it Went off All the Same. Macon Telegraph.

There happened on Sunday afternoon one more of the million cases daily happening where a man comes into play in the hands of those who didn't know it was loaded. The report came from across the river that at about 2 o'clock a man had been shot by his sweetheart. Our reporter hurried to East Macon and was soon alongside the bedside of the man who was shot. The shooting took place in the lower portion of what is known as Flanders' alley, and was about as follows:

Thomas Wright is a colored man, and was working on the new road. Adaline Hall is a sort of sweetheart of his, and on Sunday afternoon they were playing with each other. During the frolic Adaline reached up and got a small pistol from the mantel and Tom rushed out of doors. Outside she pointed it at him, and he told her several times it was loaded, but she said she knew it was not, and continued to point it at him. Like all pistol shots, it didn't want to be fooled with, and went off, the ball entering Tom's right eye. Mr. Carroll was sent for, and the nature of the wound discovered to be nothing serious, the ball having entered the eye, but flattened itself against the bone of the nose and lodged under the lower lid.

Yesterday he was doing quite well, but it will be some time before he can see out of his optic.

"Wh-a-a-a-a-at are You Doing?"

An elderly gentleman in this country was sitting by the dentist, was quietly pulling fourteen teeth for his wife, who was having an artificial tooth put in. The lady, who was a heroine, and put the idea into her husband's head that he, too, could have one tooth pulled as easily. The tooth had been troubling him for years, and he had never before had to put the courage of a dentist put his forces on it. But he thought now was his time if it was ever coming. With great trepidation he took his seat in the chair. The dentist asked matters, called out a firm hold on the tooth with his instrument of torture, as the patient regarded it. The tugging began, and as it progressed the patient with a guttural sound, very earnestly asked: "Wh-a-a-a-a-at are you doing?" and as the tooth came out with it came the conclusion of the remark, "a are you doing?"

Rome's Ice Factory.

Major Sam Morgan and Captain Dave Griffin, during the fine opening of this city for an ice factory, have purchased the four ton ice machine which has been in successful operation in Selma, Alabama, for the past four years, and will have it removed to Rome as soon as it can be taken down and placed on cars. Captain Griffin, who is a practical engineer, leaves for Selma this morning with the money in his pocket to pay for the machine. He informed a Courier man yesterday that he saw the machine of the machinery on board the cars ready for shipment to Rome by Saturday night. Major Morgan, who is backing him, also said to the reporter, hereafter Rome would not be at the mercy of the ice dealers. The machine which they would run would furnish an ample supply for Rome and neighboring towns, and that the price of the almost necessary commodity would be put at a price within the reach of all.

Stabbed on the Eve of His Marriage.

Last night about half past seven o'clock Cyrus Grinn, colored, who had made all the necessary arrangements for his marriage with a dusky damsel, unfortunately got into a fight with another colored man, which came near resulting very seriously. Cyrus' antagonist drew a knife and commenced hacking at him lively, and inflicted a wound before he could be prevented. It was a deep cut, and dangerous, and Cyrus announced that the wedding should come off anyhow, and we presume it did, and that the happiness of the plucky Cyrus was made complete.

Manufactories.

Athens Watchman.
Athens does not properly appreciate her manufacturing enterprises. Our foundry pays to its hands over $12,000 a month, the four factories in and adjacent to the city each a great deal more, not counting the paper mill, cotton gin, printing offices, planing mill, cotton compresses, railroads and various other enterprises in our midst. In fact, our city can almost live by absorption. Now let our people go to work and supplement these grand industries.

MARK BLANDFORD TALKS

ABOUT "GATH" AND THE SECESSION OF GEORGIA.

The Columbus Warrior, Statesman and Lawyer Calls Gath the Modern Ananias; Says Colonel Lamar was not at the Convention and the Editor did not get H. V. Johnson Drunk.

Columbus Times.

With Virginia weeds burning three of us listened while Colonel Blandford entertained with his usual spicy comments on public men and the times present and gone. With a breath he dispelled the reputation Gath, of the Cincinnati Enquirer, has given Editor Lamar, of the Macon Telegraph, as a PATRIOTIC TODDY-MIXER.

"The whole of this is a lie," says the colonel, "everybody knows that in anything touching the south Gath is a modern Ananias. He is even wrong in the convention before which Herschel V. Johnson made the great speech referred to. I was present, and I don't think Albert was."

It was the state democratic convention of 1860 to select delegates to the national democratic convention to be held in Charleston. Johnson had made a great effort in the forenoon and there no doubt but that it was the greatest effort of his life, but had not finished his speech when dinner was announced. Very much exhausted and on an empty stomach he went into the bar under the pretense of getting a drink, with some words that revived him, and caused him to over-act himself. As a matter of course when the convention assembled after dinner he was in no condition to continue the masterly effort of the forenoon and his words that had been burning flambeaux of eloquence in the morning were the chilled stammering effusions of a stupefied, smothered intellectual furnace from which the flames had been shut off. He was a lifeless on the ears of his hearers. He was followed by Howell Cobb, then secretary of the treasury, fresh from the national capital, and snarling under the exhortation given him by Johnson, he gave the morning hour, who vividly pictured the wrongs that were being done our section and carried the convention with him, and firmly put the delegates that finally brought forth secession. Albert is no more responsible for the secession of Georgia than thousands of others in the state, but I will tell you who is, if any one man is more than another.

RESPONSIBLE FOR THE SECESSION OF GEORGIA.

Senator Joseph E. Brown. In the convention that adopted the resolutions of secession the delegates were very much mixed and fears were entertained that the resolutions would be defeated. In north Georgia there was a very large union element and the delegates from that section were mostly elected for that reason. Johnson, who was a vote for Brown, then (governor, went to his friends from Cherokee and made a final appeal, telling them, "I have seized Fort Pulaski below Savannah, and the United States arsenal at Augusta, and if Georgia does not secede they will hang me for treason and you don't want to see me hang."

They cast their votes for secession, and many others voted for it against their convictions, when they were told by Johnson that they might make it appear unanimous, hoping thereby to avert a war. Many believed that when the north saw that the entire people of the south were unanimous in their determination to secede, they would let them go peacefully. However, I don't want you to think I was one of the reluctant, for such was not the case.

You doubtless know that the colonel was one of the bitterest of Governor Colquitt's opponents in the last race. Well, a change has come over the spirit of his dreams, for we can see a change in the executive management of state affairs. He attends Sunday-school conventions with his accustomed regularity, goes north or elsewhere wherever the affairs of the state demand it, yet the colonel now is the most devoted of the state's history. All this is in full accord with our sentiments entertained for the distinguished gentleman all the time, but the colonel confines his praise to the last term which he served in the reformation worked by the opposition in the last gubernatorial race.

During his attendance on the supreme court in Atlanta he felt distressed, the colonel says he was approached by a young man, an independent, who said, "Colonel, I think you Norwoddites ought to join now, you are opposed to Governor Colquitt and Joe Brown. To whom do you report?" "Oh," said the colonel, "I report to no one but to my present lick, like Charlie Hudson's sergeant, we are with them. Charlie Hudson is the soldier of the south, and he is doing the work of the state. That nothing has been done during his present term to which exception can be taken and that it will be handed down to posterity as the best of the best of the state's history. All this is in full accord with our sentiments entertained for the distinguished gentleman all the time, but the colonel confines his praise to the last term which he served in the reformation worked by the opposition in the last gubernatorial race."

Superior Court.

Yesterday was "return day" for Fulton superior court. No more civil cases can be returned for trial at the next term which commences on the first Monday after the fourth Monday in this month. 225 cases have been returned.

City Court.

In the city court yesterday a number of cases were called and the defendants being in default, orders were passed declaring their bonds forfeited. Carrie Bowden was convicted on a charge of larceny from the person and sentenced to eight months.

United States District Court.

In the district court yesterday Judge Boardman presiding, the following business was transacted: Aaron Chandler, distilling, etc., three months in Hall county jail, $200 fine and costs; G. W. Holloway, distilling, etc., plea of guilty, three months in Hall county jail, $200 fine and costs; William Stewart, retailing, one month in Fulton county jail, $100 fine and costs; Thomas Wix, distilling and working, plea guilty, one month in Bartow county jail, $100 fine and costs, Lum Baugh, distilling, etc., plea guilty, one month in Fulton county jail, $100 fine and costs.

Amusements.

Robinson's Humpty Dumpty pantomime specialty company will begin an engagement at DeLuxe's opera house to-night. Something unusual, a free exhibition will be given before the performance, consisting of a concert by the brass band, light rope performance, fireworks, etc. The company has certainly received many flattering notices from the press of cities and towns visited by them.

Marco, Marco, one of the smallest female clown in the world. Doubtless a large audience will be in attendance at the opera house.

Resisting the School Tax.

A novel suit has been started by a citizen of Atlanta. He has been unable after two years of trial, to get a place in the public schools. He now proposes to resist the payment of the school tax by law, and has employed an attorney to take the matter in hand. He says: "I do not see why I should be taxed to support the schools when I cannot get any representation in them. I have the same right of any other citizen to send my boy, and yet there are hundreds of others who have no voice, and have none. I do not think they can collect a school tax when they refuse to let me send my son to the school."

The Richmond and Danville Shops.

We learn that the Richmond and Danville railroad has bought the bulk of the rolling mill bonds, which will naturally give them control of the site of the old rolling mill. They bought the $100,000 bonds in exchange to the Citizens' bank, so it is said, at 32 1/2 cents on the dollar, about $12,000 worth from General Gordon at the same figure and about $7,000 from the State road at about the same. This gives them certainly about $19,000 of the whole issue of $250,000, and they may have the balance. At 32 1/2 cents the bonds will cost about $81,000. There would be about $25,000 worth of property besides the land, making the land, twenty-five acres in all, cost about $55,000 net. This is not an extravagant price. If the Richmond and Danville company gets possession of this place it will undoubtedly locate its shops and depot there. We understand that Mr. Grant Wilkins represented a company that wished to buy the site of the rolling mill, and what is on it for the purpose of re-establishing a rolling mill there.

Estey Organ Concert.

The twenty-eighth musical evening of the Estey organ company took place at their warehouse last night. The press was so great that late comers were unable to gain standing room. The programme was as follows:

2. La Dame Blanche—Bergher; organ solo, Mr. Bradley.

3. Fair Janette—Franz Abt; vocal duet, Miss Cady and Miss Roy.

4. Theme Varie—Eichberg; piano solo, Mr. Alfred Eichberg.

5. Callie Herrin—Old Scotch; vocal solo, Mr. C. M. Cady.

Part Second—1. I Would that My Love, Mendelssohn. Vocal duet, Miss Cady and Mr. Cady.

2. Kelving Grove, Old Scotch. Soprano solo, Miss Cady.

3. Premier Ronde, Chopin. b. In the Mill. Tedesco. Pity Maiden. Vocal duet, Miss Cady and Mr. Bradley.

A GOOD SUGGESTION

Made by the Soft Iron of a Leading Hardware Merchant.

"I am averse to going into print," said one of our leading merchants yesterday, "but if I did, there is one subject I should agitate."

"What subject is that?"

"The accounts of the cotton exposition have been settled up, and I understand that there will be a surplus of some three thousand dollars. Such a dividend as this to the stockholders would be too small to have any value, and I have a plan to suggest which I am sure would meet the approval of every stockholder connected with the enterprise."

"Your plan is—?"

"To divide the amount between three of Atlanta's most worthy institutions—the public library, St. Joseph's infirmary and the Benevolent fund. This would at war with about a thousand dollars apiece, and would go a long way towards giving each of them stability, while divided among so many stockholders it would be a mere bagatelle."

United States Circuit Court.

The Home Building and Loan Association.
By reference to an advertisement in this issue it will be seen that application is made for a charter of "The Home Building and Loan Association."
This is necessary because the charter heretofore ob-

Building and Loan association, was given under the same name as one formerly existing in this city, and whose charter has not yet expired by limitaincorporators for a charter giving the incorporation

a different name—"The Home Building and Loan Association."

A Review of the Work of Collector Clark's Deputies for the Past Five Years.
By permission of Collector Clark a CON-STITUTION reporter on yesterday examined the records in the revenue office for the past five years and obtained some figures which are of general interest. Collector Clark and his deputies and their assistants have, during the time mentioned, seized 975 illicit stills, 973 cups and 980 worms. The illicit spirits seized amounted to 15,832 gallons, together with 5,259 gallons of low wines, 313 bushels of malt, 1,858 bushels of meal and 99,300 gallons of mash and beer, 145 mules and horses have been seized and 47 oxen, 112 wagons and 121 sets of harness confiscated for being used in the removal of illicit whisky. Twenty-six guns were found in illicit distilleries and were seized. 3,821 pounds of leaf tobacco has been seized and 23,164 cigars confiscated.
By calculation we find that the mash and beer produced over forty thousand gallons of spirits. The producing capacity of the stills seized at the low estimate of one gallon per day would be per year more than three hundred and fifty thousand gallons and had they been permitted to operate during the last five years the amount of tax evaded would have been more than one and a half millions dollars.
Another record shows that within five years twelve revenue men have been killed and twenty-four wounded, and nearly three thousand men arrested for violations of the revenue laws.

BLOODY WORK.
A Raiding Party of Revenue Officers Kill a Man.
Yesterday information reached the city of the killing of a white man named Jack Hicks, in Gwinnett county, by a party of revenue raiders, headed by Deputy Marshal Bolton.
The particulars of the killing, which occurred yesterday morning, were difficult to gather, owing to the fact that all the revenue officers who were familiar with the facts declined to talk on the subject. There were several stories as to the details of the killing, one of which was to the effect that the killing was justifiable, while another showed it up as an unjustifiable and brutal murder. Hicks was accused of a violation of the revenue laws, and the raiders were endeavoring to arrest him. He resisted, and was shot and killed. Yesterday afternoon several officers from Gwinnett and DeKalb in the city making an investigation, and it is probable that the entire party of raiders will be arrested and some of them tried for the offense.

BOY LOST.
A Ten-Year-Old Son of Mrs. Arand, of Marietta Street, Missing and Not to be Found.
The Marietta street residence near No. 124 was in a fever of excitement all day yesterday over the unaccountable disappearance of a small ten-year-old lad. At 124 resides a Mrs. Arand, who is the mother of the lost child. Early yesterday morning the boy, whose name is Calvin, was seen to leave the house, going out into the street. Nothing strange was thought of this as he usually wandered about at pleasure, but when the child failed to return at noon his absence was observed. Later in the evening he was still from home and his anxious mother caused a search to be instituted, but up to midnight he had not been found.
The boy is about ten years of age, has light hair, is light complexioned and very smart. He was dressed in a dark brown suit of jeans with brass buttons.

A Rare Bird.
Quite a crowd was attracted to the corner of Marietta and Broad streets yesterday, to see an eagle which was securely caged in a cage crate and offered for sale by a young farmer named J. S. Parley, who lives near Stone Mountain. He showed the eagle about two weeks ago, and was easily captured, and it has since that time been slowly recovering from the effects of the wound. He measured six feet eight inches from tip to tip, and was a powerful specimen of his species. Mr. Parley was holding the bird at three dollars, while his highest bid was seventy-five cents,
which went to show that eagles are rather hard stock in Atlanta.

A New Building Association.
The Home Building and Loan Association, of Atlanta, Georgia, was organized at Concordia hall last night, and elected J. F. Cummings president; Joel Shurt, secretary and treasurer. Directors: George Winship, A. B. Bostick, A. L. Koutz, J. C. Semore, G. O.
Peters and H. L. Wilson.

whelmed with applications for seeds.

Yesterday William Hall was commissioned notary public for the 65th district of Troup county.

Walt county received two new notaries public yesterday. W. S. Carter was commissioned for the 25th district and Charles M.
Booth was commissioned for the 41st district of that county.

southern Georgia.

lanta, now of Chicago, are in the city, stopping at J. M. Holbrook's, 75 Washington street.
Mr. Jesse Douglas, well-known in Atlanta's business circles, leaves to-day for Montgomery, Ala., where he goes to accept the position of bookkeeper for the Exchange hotel in that city.

LOCAL BREVITIES.
At half-past eight o'clock yesterday morning the remains of Mr. John A. McWhorter were sent to Penfield, Greene county, for interment.
Night before last a passenger train on the Macon and Brunswick road, twenty miles below Macon, was delayed two hours because of the spreading of the track from the effects of the wet weather.
